Building your Michigan business

If you have ever pulled into one of the state's highway rest stops, you have seen the work of vendors who have won contracts with the State of Michigan. From the crews that clean the buildings, mow the lawn and remove the trash to the cartons of hand soap, paper products and cleaning supplies used inside – all are provided by private vendors.

If you're ready to build your business and become one of our vendors, keep reading!

More than 1,300 contracts

Companies of all sizes hold State contracts to provide a wide range of goods and services. The State's contract portfolio of 1,300 contracts is valued at more than $16 billion. Whether you sell milk or electrical supplies, commodities or computers, chemicals or janitorial services, you have potential as a Michigan vendor.

Buy Michigan First

Governor Jennifer M. Granholm understands that strengthening opportunities for small businesses contributes to the state's economic prosperity. Through her Buy Michigan First directive, she put Michigan-based businesses first, giving them contract preference in supplying goods and services to State agencies. Her directive charged the Department of Management and Budget with taking this message to the public. Since April 2006, we have told more than 4,000 business owners in dozens of communities about these opportunities.

Now we'd like to tell you!

Contracts for goods and services

Michigan uses a competitive-bid process to purchase goods and services.

DMB's Purchasing Operations Division acts on behalf of State agencies for contracts valued at $25,000 or more. Individual agencies have the authority to buy goods and services under this amount. DMB and the Department of Information Technology work together to purchase almost $3 billion in information technology equipment annually. DIT experts work with State agencies to identify computer security, database administration, application development, staffing and various technology needs, and DMB purchasing experts carry out the bid process.

To take the first step in the contracting process, visit www.michigan.gov/BuyMichiganFirst to register as a vendor. Using the links at the left, click on Vendor Information and use these links to reach the On-Line Vendor Registration Web site. Once you register, you're ready to research opportunities, write your proposals and submit bids.

By clicking on the Bids and Proposals link at www.michigan.gov/doingbusiness, you'll find links to current opportunities. You'll find postings for Invitations to Bid as well as relevant supporting information. You also can find the complete contract list, the status of open contracts and other information to help you compete for Michigan contracts.
